After many thanks to all of those who had helped make the week end a success, Judge Williams extended special recognition to Dr. John W. Long, and Mrs. T. M. B. Hicks.

To Dr. Long goes special recognition and appreciation for his foresight and ambition in seeing this institution rise from a seminary to a junior college and finally to a four-year college. With 32 years of service to Lycoming and its predecessors, Dr. Long has completed the most successful and longest term in college administration.

To Mrs. Hicks, a graduate of Dickinson Seminary in the class of 1884, goes special recognition for her loyalty and faithfulness.

Students Vote For Return of Varsity Football

"We want football at Lycoming" stated the student body recently in a campus-wide election. The possibility of re-introducing football was put to a vote of the undergraduates and was favored by 90 percent of the students who cast ballots.

Dr. John W. Long, president, told the student body that the directors of the college had approved football for 1954 provided students endorse the project to the extent of a voluntary $10 increase in their student activities fee.

The question of re-introducing the Fall sport came before the students after a campus study made by Robert F. Smith, head of the education department and director of athletics, was reviewed and favorably acted upon by the athletic committee of the board of directors.

The directors approved the committee's recommendation with the proviso that student participation be made manifest before financial involvements are incurred.

A campus study shows 33 students have had football training in their respective high schools.

provoking discussion on keeping the mind young. Quoting the philosopher William James, who said there were possibility people and anti-possibility people, Dr. Haines listed four ways of remaining a possibility person.

Possibility people (1) see an alternative; (2) challenge the worst, (3) make conventionalities fluid, and (4) can imagine different states of minds.

Continuing he said, "Progress is due to young minds; imagination keeps the mind growing". "Christ had a young mind".
